27 707 / Pixabay Fish, forests and a minimum number of minerals are the only real natural resources of Japan. Despite having one of the largest economies in the world and a high standard of living, Asian country depends on imports to survive. In contrast, agriculture, tourism, the service industry and manufactured goods, such as electronic, automobiles, machinery, ships and chemical products, are the main components of Japanese economy. Just a nation Islands in Pacific Ocean, its main natural resources are facing its coasts in the form of fish and other seafood. The country has more than 2,000 fishing ports, although even its fishing industry is in decline due to contamination, overfishing, restrictions of other countries and aging of fishing population. Japan also participates in the police commercial hunting of whales. Mariscosel second largest natural resource in Japan is its collection of forests. More than two-thirds of the nation is covered with forests formed by various types of trees. Approximately 40% of Japanese forests were created by man to provide wood for construction. However, Japanese companies discovered that it was more cheap to use concrete, and many of those forests remain intact. Economists affirm that these intact resources have the potential to help Japan create one of the most important forest industries in the world. A, minerals, a, some minerals, such as copper, gold, tanning, zinc, manganese, are extracted in Japan in certain areas, but the quantities are so small or its quality so bad as many They do not consider them natural resources from the country. It represents a small part of the Japanese economy. The most commonly cultivated cultivation is rice, which grows in rice fields or flooded fields, throughout the country. However the Montaino makes agriculture hinders in many areas. Barley, potatoes, tA © and wheat are some of the other important crops of Japan. Other economic contributors Tourism Tourism is also part of Economy, and it is a sector that is growing. Every year, millions of people from all over the world visit Tokyo to shop, visit Buddhist temples, visit Mount Fuji, and explore the rest of the nation and its unique culture. The service industry of Industry Japan Service also plays an important role. In the economy and, unlike some others, it has been increasing in the 21st century. This includes cleaning service, child care, family care, leisure activities, advertising, real estate, publishing, insurance and telecommunications. Manufacturers of World War II, Japan's manufacturing industry has grown faster than any other industry and had the greatest impact. In the economy of the country. More motorized vehicles are produced and more boats are built here than almost anywhere else in the world. Machinery, electronics, cameras, telecommunications equipment, iron and steel are also some of its most manufactured products. "Imports and exports due to lack of natural resources, Japan is heavily dependent on exports and imports. Most of its imports are made up of energy sources, such as coal, natural gas and oil, because the country cannot produce its own. Agricultural products and audio-video equipment are also among its best imports. Most of Japan's imports come from China, the United States, Australia and South Korea. Most of Japan's exports go to the United States, followed by China, Hong Kong, South Korea and Thailand. Motor vehicles, car parts, machinery, semiconductors and plastics are among its main exports.
