[suburb state postcode]

To whom it may concern

Re: [tenant names and address of rental property]

This reference letter is to confirm that [tenant names and their children if relevant] have been tenants in the above property since [date of tenancy]. The rental property is a [2-bedroom apartment].

Their last rent payment was $[rental amount], which was paid on time on [date of payment]. During the tenancy, they have been responsible and timely in their rent payments, which were due [monthly/fortnightly/weekly].

There have been no complaints from neighbours, and the tenants have kept the property and its surrounding area clean and tidy. [We will refund their rental bond within 14 days of their moving-out date].

I can confirm that the tenants were respectful, friendly and helpful. They made no unreasonable demands or complaints during their tenancy.

[Their pet dog has also been quiet and well behaved with no complaints from neighbours.]

We have not served [tenant names] a Notice to Remedy or any other legal notice during the tenancy. They informed us in advance of the reason for their move. However, if they choose to stay, we will gladly rent out our property to them again.

Dear [Recipients Name],

I hope this finds you well. My name is Claire Clarks. I currently work as a Branch Manager at the South Branch of XYZ Bank. Incidentally, I am also closely acquainted with one of your prospective tenants, Ms. Jean Janes. We used to be colleagues at another branch of the same bank before she decided to build her own business in retailing.

If you are looking for employment, you may have seen some online work posts that ask for a letter of intent - but what does that mean? In this context, a letter of intent is similar to a letter of presentation. it includes information on why you are qualified for the position. you should write a letter of intent when an employer asks one on a working list. send this letter beyond your resume and other necessary application materials. but you can also write a letter of intent when you want to express interest in working for a company that has no specific work listed. you can oar this letter to explain why you would be a good fit for the organization, should an appropriate role appear. In this situation, a letter of intent is similar to a letter of inquiry, also called a letter of interest. Explain in what kind of work you are interested in - for example, maybe you are looking for a managerial position u a position in a given department - but don't get very specific. If you are sending a letter of intent to a specific job u is simply expressing your interest in working for a company, make sure your letter is well written, professional and shows why you are a good fit for the company. The intent cards are oaled as an introduction medium to customize your application and connect the hiring manager to your resume. they facilitate recruitment u employer to see exactly what their qualifications are and what you can bring to the table that other candidates cannot. a well-written letter will help your application to be noticed and provide details to the employer about why you are a strong candidate and should be considered. a good letter can help you get an interview. salutationbegin with a professional greeting, discover the name of the employer u hiring manager and include it inopening. If you don't know who should drive the letter, call the office and ask. Body Paragraph 1: IntroductionIntroduce your letter byand to explain why he is writing. If you are responding to a list of specific jobs, say so. If otherwise, simply explain that you are interested in working for the company. It may explain what type of job you are interested in - for example, you may be looking for a management position or a position in a particular department - but it doesn't become too specific. Body Parãgraph 2: Highlight Relevant CompetencyS Here © where you link your competency and skills to the employment list. Take some time to carefully review the creation of the functions and the requirements listed therein. Mention one or two important job requirements, and explain how you meet those requirements. Provide specific examples of your past work experiences. If it's "cold calling" the company, explain how your competency would make it a good fit for the company. The closer you are to your job requirements credentials or company needs, the better your opportunity to be chosen for a job interview will be. You can divide this section into two paragraphs, depending on the number of competers you mention. Body Chart 3: Appeal To The ActionConclude your letter with a brief stop on the follow-up that will be given to you. If the job list says not to follow up, just declare that you are eager to receive notifications from your employer. ClosingEnd with a professional closure such as ÆBestãÆ or ÆSincerelyãÆ If you are sending a printed letter, include a handwritten signature followed by your typed name. If you are sending the letter by electronic mail, complete with your electronic mail signature. Use the appropriate format. Use the trade letter format for your letter. Start with your contact information, date, and employer contact information. When sending an email, include a clear subject line. If you decide to send your letter in the from an e-mail, don't forget to include a concise line of subject that explains why you're sending an e-mail. If you are applying for a specific job, include your name and title of the job. If you're cold Include your name and a phrase like Æ ÆJob Inquiryã Æ or Æ ÆMarketing Expert Looking to Share Expertiseã Æ If you decide to send the letter by email, you also do not need to include any Contact information or the date at the top. Instead, include your contact information in the e-mail signature. Search the company. Before writing, make sure you search the company to have a sense of company culture, your mission and your needs. This is especially important if your card is a cold call. You need to explain how you add value to the company, and you can only do this if you know what the company is looking for. Do not remember your curriculum. Do not remembers your curriculum. Instead, choose your strongest qualifications and highlight them. Your goal is to show your best credentials for the employer so that they are persuaded to read your curriculum, not to provide a complete career historic. Consider using bullet points. A good strategy to format your intention letter is to include a set of bookmarks that highlights your qualifications for work. The bullets will help make your qualifications Æ ÆPoopã Æ at the page, immediately calling attention to the skills and knowledge you offer. A careful use of boldface can also help pick up the eye of the contracting manager. Keep in short. Your letter should not be more than one page. If you write a longer card, the contract manager is probably not going to leave it. Proofread your letter. You do not forget to completely review your letter for spelling, gramatic and formatting errors. Consider asking for a friend or member of the family to stick it before sending it. Your letter needs to be professional and polished. This is a sample letter of intention to apply to a job. Download the intention template card (compatible with Google Docs and Word Online). © The Balance 2018 Olive Applicant123 Main Streetanytown, CA 1, 2018James LeeHead Librarian University123 Business City, NY 54321Dear Mr. Lee:I am writing to express my strong interest in the position of library assistant at Acme University, as listed in Monster.com.
