01/29/2018 I have seen some people suggest to make the magic wood tool, but in the package I am playing (Direwolf20 1.10.2) that is not possible. I realized that in 1.10+ extra modifiers are not a thing anymore. Hopefully someone contradicts me, given my experience 1.10 is quite limited, but the last time I checked, it seemed like you were encouraged to think carefully about the tools you make, and you can no longer make an all-everything-incredibly tool. Paper parts allow even more modifiers - I think a full tool made of paper will allow you to put on five reinforcement plates, making it indestructible. Reactions: The paper parts of Pyure allow even more modifiers - I believe a full tool made of paper will allow you to put on it 5 reinforcement plates, making it indestructible. I'd like to take a tool that's indestructible and has other modifiers like haste or spike. I've come to the conclusion that making an axe or pickaxe (probably also a shovel) out of a single copper component and then putting moss on it is pretty close to indestructible. It will repair by consuming XP, which creates when it does what it was meant to do. Having a wooden tool part will also make it repair slowly, so if you do both, the effect is pretty nice. Also note that the tool with moss will repair itself from any XP you collect, so if I need to repair my pick quickly, knock down some trees with my (roars) wooden axe. Asking for an indestructible tool that does other things will not lead us to 1.10, which is better for the IMO. Reactions: GamerwithnoGame and Pyure I don't know if it is a constructive addon of Tinkers or not, but there are elements that you can craft that if you put on a tool give it an extra modifier If you use the mod levelling tool of Tinkers, you can get extra modifiers over time (use = exp tool etc.) If you use the mod levelling tool, You can get extra modifiers over time (use = exp tool etc.) This. Recently I put a wooden axe in an EIO agricultural station with a poplar capsule planting red fir trees... Things have gone crazy. It is currently unbreakable, has five remaining modifiers and I have 550k logs of red fir in my AE system. Reactions: Pyure I don't know if it's a Tinkers build addon or not, but there are elements one can craft that if put on an instrument give an extra modifier that would be the addition of a lower star, I think. Besides, I think there's still the thing about the gold block and the diamond block, and the thing about the tacca apple and the diamond block that would add a lower star, I think. Besides, I think there's still the thing about the gold block and the diamond, and the thing about the tacca apple and the diamond block back in 1.7. Ten, but not in 1.10. 2.And 1.10. 2 the lower star does something else... Soulbound, I think? So he stays with you if you die. The others just don't work. So someone made an addon because they were angry about the balance in fashion? Well, that doesn't mean anyone's gonna use it. Your version of balance and that of others may differ. Do you remember why RF exists? Because the BC team didn't think keeping MJ balanced, and KL did. (Well, more reasons like server efficiency, but...) In addition, it has 800k download. I just... Yeah. I also know where to start trying to correct this, but in the end it would only have derailed the balance sheet version and that of others may differ. Do you remember why RF exists? I also know where to start trying to correct this, but in the end it would only have derailed the thread. Just say that the creation of RF was more a programmer who didn't want to continue transporting decimals through the code of him than any issue of balance (so they continued to play well together for all this time). His initial statement, however, is correct. Everyone defines equilibrium differently, especially when designing packages. That being said, Tico for 1.10 believes (for me) more balanced than the counterpart 1.7 is not. The real compromises are now, where before you could simply build the best tool, then slap resources (perhaps too few for power) in it to make it divine. My problem with add-ons for tico (and many additional modes in general) is that the internal equilibrium of the mod is usually distorted badly or completely ignored when adding additional content (in this case materials and modifiers). Ricordi Extratic and significant crossbos? Infernal fun, but completely broken in many packs. Do you remember when the nerve hammer is compelled to fix the imbalance? You still see the thread of the occasional ass on it even now, usually wondering in which version download to get their toys back. I'm not accusing the addition of 1.10 of this, since I didn't play it. It's me that I was burned before. Several shots for different people. Reactions: Hambeau, Cheme and GamerwitNogame Game
