Loading 2020 was a challenging year for companies and professionals in South East Asia, led by the unexpected 19-COVID global pandemic. Travel restrictions, lockdowns at national level, and a night shift in consumer spending habits disrupted markets in the region. Many resultingly organizations took a more cautious approach to hiring. Going into 2021, we expect that companies remain conservative in the first half of the year, with a return to territories more optimistic hopefully occurring in the second half of 2021. Continued and demand for talent, professionals with a valuable especially FORA international experience, It will probably be occur in technology, supply chain management, pharmaceutical, insurance and renewable energy. More in general, 2021 will see a rewiring of companies and professionals expectations towards work and work life balance. I'm important that organizations begin to assess and determine their unique approach to jobs and the future of work. I wish you all the best in 2021.
